The Gobi Desert

The Gobi Desert is located in both Northern China and Southern Mongolia, covering a total area of 1.29 million km². The name "Gobi" in Mongolia means "a waterless place". The annual rainfall is about 18 cm. Gobi has rapid temperature changes, both seasonally and daily. Summer months bring temperatures of up to 50 °C whilst in the winter months, temperature can drop to below - 40°C. This is also where some of the world's first fossilised dinosaur eggs were found.

Tourists who want to explore the Gobi Desert should travel in Jeep cars with local drivers or by camel. They can admire a dramatic rocky landscape, high and dunes, and see some of the unique Gobi Desert animals such as the Jerboa, Snow Leopard, and Siberian Ibex. They should also visit ancient ruins and oasis communities, as well as meet the nomadic people whose ways of life remain untouched by Western influence.

However, the Gobi Desert is not without the threat. It is still growing at an alarming rate, causing the loss of valuable grassland. The Chinese government is currently planting the Green Wall of China, which is a line of forest, with the hope to slow down the expansion of the desert.

What is Sports Tourism?

Sports tourism is travelling from one region, country, state, etc. to engage or participate in a sports-related activity. Sports tourism combines the passion for sports with the desire to experience new experiences or destinations.

While sports tourism has not always been extremely popular, it is definitely on the rise. A recent report estimates the value of the global sports tourism market was $587.87 billion in 2022. The industry is expected to grow at a rate of 17.5% through 2030. The popularity of events like the Olympic Games, the NBA, and the FIFA World Cup have contributed to this growth. While these events have economic short-term benefits for an area, they can be a catalyst for longer-term tourism development opportunities.

In 2004, the World Tourism Organisation (WTO) and the International Olympic Committee (IOC) issued a joint statement that illustrates the strong dynamic between sports and tourism, "Tourism and sports are interrelated and complementary. Sport - as a professional, amateur or leisure activity - involves a considerable amount of travelling to play and compete in different destinations and countries. Major sporting events, such as the Olympic Games, football and rugby championships and auto racing have become powerful tourism attractions in themselves - making a very positive contribution to the tourism image of the host destination".

English is a (19) _____ language spoken by a lot of people around the world. Approximately 1.5 billion people speak English as a native or as a second language. However, when it comes to understanding the difference between American English (AE) and British English (BE), it is not uncommon to find even native-English speakers getting (20) _____.

One of (21) _____ differences between BE and AE is in terms of vocabulary. In the UK, for example, they call it a flat, while in America it's an apartment. British go on holiday, while Americans go on vacation. Some of the other common words like trousers, lorry, university and chips come under BE while for AE they correspond to pants, truck, college and fries.

Another significant difference is the (22) _____ of certain words, such as color in AE instead of colour in BE. Verbs that are spelt with ize or ise in BE are always spelt as ize in AE. For example, it is apologize or apologise in BE but in AE, it is always apologize.

Aside from spelling and vocabulary, there are certain grammar differences between BE and AE. For instance, in AE, collective nouns are considered singular (e.g. The band is playing). In contrast, collective nouns can be (23) _____ singular or plural in BE, although the plural form is most often used (e.g. The band are playing). The British are also more likely to use formal speech, such as shall, whereas Americans (24) _____ the more informal will or should.

English as a global language

People often talk about English as a global language or lingua franca. With more than 350 million people around the world speaking English as a first language and more than 430 million speaking it as a second language, there are English speakers in most countries around the world. Why is English so popular, though? And why has it become a global language?

People often call English the international language of business, and it's increasingly true as international trade expands every year, bringing new countries into contact. Most multinational companies require a certain degree of English proficiency from potential employees so in order to get a position with a top company, more and more people are learning English.

If your ambitions lie in science or medicine, you can't neglect English either. Much of the technical terminology is based on English words, and if you want to learn about the latest developments and discoveries from around the world, you'll read about them in journals and research reports published in English, no matter whether the scientists who wrote them are from China or Norway.

If you want a career in travel, English is absolutely essential. As the international language of aviation, pilots and cabin crew all need to speak English. Even if you're not up in the air, speaking English accurately will ensure you are able to communicate with clients and suppliers all over the world.

So, what's stopping you from learning this global language? With all the English resources available on the internet and so many other English speakers around the world to practice with, there's never been a better time to start learning English. Pick up a book, learn a few words, or even start a course today and take your first steps towards becoming one of nearly 800 million English speakers in the world.

Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the following questions from 31 to 36.

Polar habitats cover the top and bottom of planet Earth at the North and South Poles. The North Pole is surrounded by the Arctic Ocean. There isn't any land here, just a group of continually shifting ice sheets. Parts of Canada and Greenland are near the North Pole. The South Pole is located in Antarctica. This area has land, but it's completely covered with a layer of ice that's almost 3 miles thick.

The polar regions have two seasons: summer and winter. In the summer, the sun shines 24 hours a day, but it never gets high enough above the horizon to warm things up, so even summers are pretty cold. It's dark all winter because the sun doesn't rise during those months of the year. Fierce continuous winds make it feel even colder.

It's much too cold and dry for trees to grow in most areas of the Arctic, and there is no room for their roots, because just under the surface of the ground there is always a layer of ice, called permafrost. You won't find trees in Antarctica, but some types of small shrubs, lichens, mosses, and algae are able to grow in the harsh climate.

Polar bears and arctic foxes are adapted to the extreme weather of the Arctic region. Walruses and humpback whales live in the Arctic ocean. Several kinds of penguins, including the emperor penguin, live in Antarctica, and so do walruses and narwhals.

Question 31: What is the main idea of the passage?

- A. Polar bears and penguins are well-adapted to their environments.
- B. The North and South Poles have distinct geographical features.
- C. The Arctic and Antarctic regions have unique and harsh climates.
- D. Permafrost prevents tree growth in the Arctic.

Question 32: Why can't trees grow in the Arctic?

- A. Because the permafrost prevents the roots from growing
- B. Because the sun doesn't rise most of the time.
- C. Because shrubs and lichens grow instead of trees
- D. Because the winds make the weather even colder

Question 33: What animals can be found in both the North and South Poles?

- A. Polar bears
- B. Emperor penguins
- C. Humpback whales
- D. Walruses

Question 34: Which of the following sentences is NOT TRUE about the polar habitats?

- A. There is land covered with ice in the South Pole
- B. There are other types of penguins besides the emperor penguins in the South Pole

C. The polar habitats have four seasons just like other parts of the world

D. It's cold and dry in most areas of the Arctic.

The environment we live in is facing many serious problems. We need to be aware of these problems so that we can find ways to protect nature.

Global warming is the rise in the average temperature of the earth's atmosphere. It is one of the biggest issues facing humans today. It can have serious consequences such as rising sea levels, polar ice melting, and extreme weather events like floods or heatwaves.

Another environmental problem is the cutting and clearing of natural forests. The loss of forests can have a negative impact on the environment. It can damage the natural habitats of many animals and put wildlife in danger. It can also destroy the natural soil and lead to climate change.

Air pollution is also a serious problem. It is mainly caused by waste gases that come out of vehicles, machines, or factories. When these harmful gases combine with the water in the air, they come down as rain or snow, which can damage all forms of life. In addition, this problem leads to global warming and climate change. It is also a major cause of respiratory diseases or even lung cancer.

Around the world, the number of endangered animals is rising. Many of them disappear because of pollution and climate change. In addition, humans illegally hunt and kill animals, and catch too many fish at once. This is upsetting the natural balance of ecosystems, which can be harmful to all living and non-living things.

Question 31: What is the main idea of the passage?

Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the following questions from 31 to 36.

In this day and age, it's inevitable that your kid will need a cell phone at some point. Buying a phone for your kid is a big decision. Not only is it a financial investment, but you also need to consider Internet safety and how kids can use electronics in a healthy way. "Today's parents are both blessed and cursed by technology options made available to their children," says Titania Jordan, the chief parenting officer of parental-control app Bark. "While the ability to locate and communicate with your children in real-time is incredible, the ability of others to do so can be frightening and dangerous."

When considering which cell phone to buy for your child, consider their age, the intended users of the phone, and the parental control options. If your teen just started driving, a smartphone with a built in GPS and full calling abilities in case of emergency may be a good bet. For a younger kid, a simple phone with no internet access that lets them text their parents may be all they need. You may even decide they don't need a phone quite yet but can instead use a smart watch to text you and make short phone calls with approved contacts. To find the best cell phones for kids, we surveyed nearly 500 parents to learn about the phones they have bought for their own kids, as well as how their families navigate technology use. We also spoke to the Internet safety experts that specialize in kids' safe use of phones. Additionally, we reviewed guidance from the American Academy of Pediatrics (AAP) regarding when to give your child a cell phone.

Question 31: What is the main idea of the passage?

A. The pros and cons of children using cell phones

B. How to choose the best cell phone for your child

ROBOT TEACHERS

If you think of the jobs that robots could never do, you probably put doctors and teachers at the top of the list. However, in some cases robots already perform better than doctors at diagnosing illness. Also, some patients might feel more comfortable sharing personal information with a machine than with a person. Could there be a place for robots in education after all?

British education expert Anthony Seldon thinks so. He predicts by 2027 robots will do the main job of transferring information and teachers will be like assistants. Intelligent robots will read students' faces, movements and maybe even brain signals. Then they will adapt the information to each student. It's not a popular opinion and it's unlikely robots will ever have empathy and the ability to really connect with humans like another human can.

Teachers all over the world are leaving because it is a difficult job and they feel overworked. Perhaps the question is not 'Will robots replace teachers?' but 'How can robots help teachers?' Office workers can use software to do things like organise and answer emails, arrange meetings and update calendars. Teachers waste a lot of time doing non-teaching work, including more than 11 hours a week marking homework. If robots could cut the time teachers spend marking homework and writing reports, teachers would have more time and energy for the parts of the job humans do best.

Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the following questions from 31 to 36.

If we were asked exactly what we were doing a year ago, we would probably have to say that we could not remember. But if we kept a book and wrote in it an account of what we did each day, we should be able to give an answer. In a way, this is similar to history. 45 Most people are proud to tell you what their ancestors did in the past. We may call this remembered history. But many things have been forgotten because we do not have any written account of them. Sometimes people kept a record of the most important happenings in their country, but often it was destroyed by fire or in a war. Sometimes there was never any written record because the people of that time and place did not know how to write. For example, we know a lot about the people who lived in China about 2,500 years ago because they could write and leave written records for those who lived after them. But we know little about the people who lived just 200 years ago in central Africa, because they had no writing system. Sometimes, even if people cannot write, they may know something of the past. They have heard about it from older people, and often songs, dances, and stories have been made about the most important past events, and these have been sung about, acted and told for generations.

Question 31: What is the main idea of the passage?

- A. Writing systems are the only way to preserve knowledge about the past
- B. People in central Africa 200 years ago left no records of their history.
- C. Oral traditions like songs, dances, and stories help preserve history without writing
- D. People who cannot write have no knowledge of their past

Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the following questions from 31 to 36.

While the cover letter has become a divisive topic among employers and job seekers, many employers still think cover letters are important. According to a 2023 study by employment website Zippia, more than a fourth (26 %) of employers 'always read cover letters' and think they're an important factor of the hiring decision. And almost half (45%) said that not including a cover letter could get your application rejected. So, in most cases, it's best to be cautious and include one. It can help you stand out from the crowd. As a result, if you have similar abilities as other candidates, a cover letter allows you to highlight your personality and special skills. In short, including a cover letter is truly useful for job search. Here's how:

- It shows that you are willing to put in extra effort. Looking for a new job requires a lot of work, so it might be hard to write different cover letters for different positions. However, according to the Zippia study, 61 percent of hiring managers consider a customized resume (including a cover letter and portfolio link) as the "top method for applicants to increase their chances of getting a job."

- You can solve any biases that may exist. In an ideal world, employers wouldn't judge you based on things like gaps in employment or frequent job changes. Career coach Marlo Lyons suggests using your cover letter to explain any gaps and provide context for these situations, so employers don't get the wrong impression.

Question 31: What is the main idea of the passage?

- A. The importance of cover letter in job applications
- B. The role of recruiters in the hiring process
- C. The benefits of including a resume in a job search
- D. The study conducted by Zippia on cover letter usage.

Question 32: According to the 2023 study, _____ of the employers think cover letter are important.

- A. Two thirds
- B. nearly half
- C. a fourth
- D. nearly all

Question 33: According to the passage, not including a cover letter could potentially result in _____.

- A. Improving your chances of getting a job
- B. Making your application stand out
- C. Getting your application rejected
- D. Addressing potential biases

Question 34: The word divisive in the passage can be replaced with _____.

- A. Positive
- B. unimportant
- C. controversial
- D. spectacular

Question 35. The phrase "stand out from the crowd" is CLOSEST in meaning to _____

- A. Blend in
- B. remain unnoticed
- C. Follow others
- D. Be different

Question 36: Why is it recommended to include a cover letter in most cases?

- A. To highlight your unique skills and personaility.
- B. To make you qualified and professional
- C. To make the job search easier and less time-consuming
- D. To improve your qualifications compared to other candidates
