Question 17: Put the sentences (a-c) in the correct order, then fill in the blank (Q) to make a logical text.

Parents' expectations tend to have the strongest impact on their children's decision-making, especially when they are young. For example, parents who work in the business sector often expect their children to pursue commerce and business. Sometimes, conflicts occur because children resist choosing the path that their parents want. Peer persuasion is another influential factor. Teenagers are impressionable, so they may find a career attractive because most of their friends do so. Though the most popular jobs sound cool, students might not do them well in the future if they are not passionate about them. Career advice that students find on the Internet may also affect their choice. However, not all online advice is practical and helpful. (Q) _____.

- a. Finally, cost is the basic criterion for many students when planning their career path.
- b. Some choose to study and work abroad while others select a career that is more affordable.
- c. The factors above may affect students' future careers both positively and negatively.

A. a-b-c B. b-c-a C. b-a-c D. c-b-a Question 18: Choose the sentence that can end the text (in Question 17) most appropriately.

- A. Since career planning is essential for a rewarding working life, it is vital that students receive a proper orientation from trustworthy sources.
- B. Students may follow career trends without considering if the job matches their skills, leading to dissatisfaction in their professional life later on.
- C. Most teenagers feel pressured to choose careers based on financial stability rather than their passions, which can result in long-term unhappiness at work.
- D. If students do not explore different career options, they may not have difficulty finding happiness with their job and being happy with their decision in the future.

Vietnamese Lifestyles: Then and Now – Hanoi

Hanoi, the capital of Vietnam, has changed a lot over the years. In the past, most houses were small, with tiled roofs and wooden doors. Streets were quiet, and people mainly used bicycles or cyclos to travel. There were no supermarkets, so people bought food at local markets, where vendors sold fresh vegetables, meat, and household goods. Families usually prepared traditional meals at home, and in the evenings, they met to talk or listen to the radio.

Life was slower, and people valued face-to-face communication. Neighbors often helped each other, and children played simple games in the streets. Schools had fewer students, and technology was limited. Most people wrote letters or used landline phones to stay in touch. Entertainment choices were also simple, such as watching black-and-white television or going to the theater.

Today, Hanoi is much more crowded and modern. High-rise buildings, shopping malls, and busy streets have replaced many old houses and markets. Motorbikes and cars fill the roads, causing heavy traffic, and public transportation like buses and trains is becoming more common. Many young people eat at restaurants or order food online instead of cooking at home. Supermarkets and convenience stores are everywhere, offering a wide variety of products.

Technology has changed the way people live. Smartphones and social media make communication instant, and online shopping is popular. Students now study with computers and access information easily on the internet. Entertainment has also grown, with cinemas, gaming centers, and streaming services replacing traditional pastimes.

Despite these changes, some traditions remain. Families still gather for meals, especially during festivals like Tet. Hanoi's old quarter continues to attract visitors with its narrow streets, small temples, and traditional shops. Many people enjoy street food, such as pho and banh mi, which have been popular for generations.

Question 31: What is the main idea of the passage?

- A. The changes in Hanoi's daily life over time.
- B. The importance of food and entertainment in Hanoi.
- C. The development of Hanoi's transportation system.
- D. The effects of tourism on Hanoi's traditions.

Question 32: What does the author use to highlight the changes between Hanoi's past and present in the passage?

Question 35: Which of the following is NOT mentioned as a change in Hanoi?

- A. The increase in public transportation.
- B. The rise of online shopping.
- C. The decline of family meals.
- D. The development of technology in education.

Question 36: What final comment does the author make about Hanoi's traditions?

- A. Traditional food is no longer popular among locals.
- B. Old customs have completely disappeared due to modernization.
- C. Some cultural traditions still exist despite the city's modernization.
- D. Hanoi's old quarter is no longer attractive to visitors.
