I chose to study at the Sydney Institute of English in Australia. As far as I know, the school has an excellent reputation for well-qualified teachers and perfect facilities for medicine, recreation, education, etc. Moreover, I have a good chance to stay with an Australian family on a farm in the countryside, which helps me learn more about culture, tradition, and language. What's more! The country has many places of interest with beautiful scenery and a wonderful nature of wild life to explore. I really expect to experience a new life and environment without my parents. I think I need to improve some social and soft skills, such as self-study, communication, cooking, taking care of myself, etc. I also plan to get a part-time job in a convenience store or a coffee shop to improve my communication skills and my English.
