Read the following passage about the promotion of a strong sense of community and mark the letter A, B, C, or D on your answer sheet to indicate the best answer to each of the following questions from 23 to 30.

Creating a sense of community is essential for building a supportive and inclusive society. It helps people feel connected, valued, and supported, which improves the overall quality of life. There are several ways to promote a strong sense of community.

One way is by encouraging regular interaction among community members. Events like neighbourhood gatherings, festivals, and local sports activities give people opportunities to meet and form connections. Volunteering for community projects, such as clean-up drives or helping at shelters, also strengthens bonds among individuals while improving their local environment.

Communication plays an important role as well. Setting up online platforms or community notice boards allows people to share news, ask for help, and organise activities. This fosters collaboration and keeps everyone informed about local events and needs.

In addition, creating shared spaces like parks, libraries, or community centres can encourage interaction. These spaces provide a welcoming environment where people can relax, socialise, or participate in group activities. Such facilities are especially helpful for bringing together people of different ages and backgrounds.

Finally, promoting values like kindness, respect, and inclusivity helps build trust among community members. This can be achieved through educational programmes, workshops, or campaigns that encourage understanding and acceptance of others.

When people feel connected to their community, they are more likely to support each other and work together to solve problems. Building a sense of community takes effort, but the benefits – such as stronger relationships, improved well-being, and a safer society – are worth it. A united community can truly make a difference in the lives of its members.

Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C, or D on your answer sheet to indicate the best answer to each of the following questions from 31 to 40.

[I] Parenting plays a crucial role in shaping the future of society, especially in the modern world where challenges and opportunities are constantly evolving. [II] Parents are the first teachers and role models for their children, influencing their values, behaviour, and overall development. [III] Effective parenting helps children grow into confident, responsible, and empathetic individuals who contribute positively to society. [IV]

In today's fast-paced world, children are exposed to various influences, including technology, media, and peer pressure. Parents need to guide their children through these influences while teaching them how to make wise decisions. By fostering open communication, parents can create a safe space for children to share their thoughts and feelings. This not only strengthens the parent-child bond but also helps children build emotional resilience.

Parenting also involves setting boundaries and teaching discipline. These are essential for helping children understand the difference between right and wrong and develop self-control. At the same time, modern parenting encourages flexibility, recognising that each child is unique and may require different approaches to nurture their strengths and address their weaknesses.

Moreover, parents play a vital role in preparing their children for the future. By promoting skills such as critical thinking, problem-solving, and adaptability, they equip their children to face challenges in a rapidly changing world. Teaching the importance of kindness, inclusivity, and respect also ensures children grow up with a strong sense of social responsibility.

In the modern era, parenting is more than just providing for children's physical needs – it involves guiding them to become well-rounded individuals. Though it can be demanding, effective parenting has lasting rewards, shaping not only the lives of children but also the future of the world. Parents who adapt to the demands of today's world help build a brighter tomorrow for everyone.
