Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C, or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the questions.

The modern comic strip started out as ammunition in a newspaper war between giants of the American press in the late nineteenth century. The first full-color comic strip appeared in January 1894 in the New York World, owned by Joseph Pulitzer. The first regular weekly full-color comic supplement, similar to today's Sunday funnies, appeared two years later, in William Randolph Hearst's rival New York paper, the Morning Journal.

Both were immensely popular and publishers realized that supplementing the news with comic relief boosted the sale of papers. The Morning Journal started another feature in 1896, the "Yellow Kid", the first continuous comic character in the United States, whose creator, Richard Outcault, had been lured away from the World by the ambitious Hearst. The "Yellow Kid" was in many ways a pioneer. Its comic dialogue was the strictly urban farce that came to characterize later strips, and it introduced the speech balloon inside the strip, usually placed above the characters' heads.

The first strip to incorporate all the elements of later comics was Rudolph Dirks's "Katzenjammer Kids", based on Wilhelm Busch's Max and Moritz, a European satire of the nineteenth century. The "Kids" strip, first published in 1897, served as the prototype for future American strips. It contained not only speech balloons, but a continuous cast of characters, and was divided into small regular panels that did away with the larger panoramic scenes of earlier comics.

Newspaper syndication played a major role in spreading the popularity of comic strips throughout the country. Though weekly colored comics came first, daily black-and-white strips were not far behind. The first appeared in the Chicago American in 1904. It was followed by many imitators, and by 1915 black-and-white comic strips had become a staple of daily newspapers around the country.

Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C, or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the questions.

Butterflies are among the most extensively studied insects, an estimated 90 percent of the world's species have scientific names. As a consequence, they are, perhaps, the best group of insects for examining patterns of terrestrial biotic diversity and distribution. Butterflies also have a favorable image with the general public. Hence, they are an excellent group for communicating information on science and conservation issues such as diversity.

Perhaps the aspect of butterfly diversity that has received the most attention over the past century is the striking difference in species richness between tropical and temperate regions.

For example, in 1875 one biologist pointed out the diversity of butterflies in the Amazon when he mentioned that about 700 species were found within an hour's walk, whereas the total number found on the British islands did not exceed 66, and the whole of Europe supported only 321. This early comparison of tropical and temperate butterfly richness has been well confirmed.

A general theory of diversity would have to predict not only this difference between temperate and tropical zones, but also patterns within each region, and how these patterns vary among different animal and plant groups. However, for butterflies, variation of species richness within temperate or tropical regions, rather than between them, is poorly understood. Indeed, comparisons of numbers of species among the Amazon basin, tropical Asia, and Africa are still mostly "personal communication" citations, even for vertebrates. In other words, unlike comparison between temperate and tropical areas, these patterns are still in the documentation phase.

In documenting geographical variation in butterfly diversity, some arbitrary, practical decisions are made. Diversity, number of species, and species richness are used synonymously; little is known about the evenness of butterfly distribution. The New World butterflies make up the preponderance of examples because they are the most familiar species. It is hoped that by focusing on them, the errors generated by imperfect and incomplete taxonomy will be minimized.

Question 71: Which aspect of butterflies does the passage mainly discuss?

- A. Their physical characteristics B. Their adaptation to different habitats
C. Their names D. Their variety

Question 72: The word "consequence" in the passage is closest in meaning to "_____".

- A. requirement B. analysis C. result D. explanation

Question 73: Butterflies are a good example for communicating information about conservation issues because they _____.

- A. are found mainly in temperate climates B. have been given scientific names
C. are simple in structure D. are viewed positively by people

Question 74: The word "striking" in the passage is closest in meaning to "_____".

- A. noticeable B. successful C. confusing D. physical

Question 75: The word "exceed" in the passage is closest in meaning to "_____".

- A. allow B. go beyond C. come close to D. locate

Question 76: All of the followings are mentioned as being important parts of a general theory of diversity EXCEPT

- A. differences between temperate and tropical zones
B. variation of patterns of distribution of species among different animals and plants
C. patterns of distribution of species in each region
D. migration among temperate and tropical zones

Question 77: The author mentions "tropical Asia" in the passage as an example of a location where _____.

- A. a general theory of butterfly diversity has not yet been firmly established
- B. butterflies are affected by human populations
- C. butterfly behavior varies with climate
- D. documenting plant species is more difficult than documenting butterfly species

Question 78: Which of the following is NOT well understood by biologists?

- A. European butterfly habitats
- B. Comparisons of behavior patterns of butterflies and certain animal groups
- C. Differences in species richness within a temperate or a tropical region
- D. Differences in species richness between temperate and tropical regions

Question 79: The idea "little is known about the evenness of butterfly distribution" is that _____.

- A. there are many other things that we don't know about butterfly evenness distribution
- B. we don't know anything about butterfly evenness distribution
- C. we know much about butterfly evenness distribution
- D. we know about butterfly evenness distribution to some extent

Question 80: The word "generated" in the passage is closest in meaning to "_____".

- A. assisted
- B. estimated
- C. requested
- D. caused
