The Pham family has a dog called Lucky. They made a daily care plan before bringing him home. Their daughter, My, gives Lucky food in the morning. Her father takes him for a short walk before work.

In the afternoon, My's brother, Phuc, plays with Lucky in the yard. He checks the water bowl and fills it when necessary. The family puts the care plan on the fridge so nobody forgets a job.

My's mother shows the children how to brush Lucky carefully. She helps them clean his sleeping place once a week. The children share these jobs instead of leaving them all to their parents.

When My has extra homework, Phuc feeds Lucky for her. My helps Phuc on his busy days, too. Their parents say that caring for a pet teaches responsibility. The children agree because Lucky needs them every day.
