Read the following passage about artificial intelligence and mark the letter A, B, C or D on your answer sheet to indicate the best answer to each of the following questions from 13 to 20.

AI is affecting our lives. Although it's new, some of the advantages it brings are impressive. However, there are potential risks associated with AI that must be considered.

A huge advantage of using AI is that it saves you time by doing tasks for you. AI can write hundreds of lines of code to build a website and help people write business documents and stories in just a few seconds. Another way AI helps students is that it is available 24/7. It's in a way like having your own personal tutor with you. Many students feel shy asking questions in class, but AI allows them to ask freely. AI can be used to fine-tune a search, so it only provides you with the most relevant information you need. For example, if you ask it to write an essay about digital marketing and you want more information about digital marketing on Facebook, AI can redo the task, but this time focus only on marketing with Facebook.

However, the use of AI has some certain drawbacks. One of the key concerns is the potential bias in the responses given by AI. In 2022, researchers at Stanford University found that AI generated toxic and biased language when responding to certain topics and phrases. Another potential risk of AI is that it could be used to create fake news, videos or other forms of media. This could be used to spread false information.

In brief, AI is likely to transform the way we interact with technology and save us time and effort in studies and work due to its efficiency, but it can also cause potential risks such as discriminatory language or the creation of fake news.

Read the following passage about parent-child relationships and mark the letter A, B, C or D on your answer sheet to indicate the best answer to each of the following questions from 26 to 35.

[I] In recent years, the relationship between parents and children has profoundly changed. The decision about whether or not to have children is voluntary. [II] Adults who choose to be "child-free" are no longer dismissed as shallow or self-absorbed. [III] As a result, for most adults, having a child is a deliberate and purposeful decision, representing a conscious choice to assume the responsibilities of parenting. [IV]

Parenting has become more complex compared to the past. Parents today are bombarded with conflicting advice about various aspects of child-rearing, such as breastfeeding, sleep arrangements, and toilet training. Without clear guidelines from experts like Dr. Benjamin, moms and dads must decide for themselves how to rear their children. Parenting labels like attachment parenting, natural parenting, and positive parenting further complicate the decision-making process, leaving parents uncertain about the best way to raise their children.

At the same time, parents have grown more sensitive to the risks their children face, both physical and psychological. Anxiety defines modern parenting, from concerns about birth defects to children's safety. Media reports about the dangers of pedophiles, stranger abductions, bullying, and environmental hazards heighten these fears, leading to greater adult supervision and less freedom for children.

Finally, there has been a significant reversal in parental expectations. In the past, parents expected their children to love them, but today, parents seek to ensure that their children are happy and love them back. As work commitments increase, a sense of guilt often sours parent-child relationships, causing many parents to overcompensate by investing more time and resources in their children's development.

In conclusion, modern parenting has grown more complex due to shifting attitudes, conflicting advice, and heightened anxieties about children's well-being. Parents today face increasing pressures to balance guidance, independence, and emotional connection while navigating evolving expectations. Despite these challenges, their dedication to raising happy, well-adjusted children remains strong, shaping the future of parent-child relationships.

D. turnabout

Question 31. Which of the following is TRUE according to the passage?

A. Modern parenting prioritizes material support and career success over emotional well-being as parent-child relationships evolve.

B. Modern parents trust their experience and intuition over media reports on children's safety risks.

C. Despite choosing parenthood deliberately, modern parents prioritize children's independence over emotional closeness, unlike past generations.

D. Changing societal views on having children make parents more intentional but increasingly uncertain due to conflicting advice.

Question 32. The word their in the last paragraph refers to _____.

A. challenges

B. expectations

C. parents

D. children

Question 33. Which of the following best summarizes paragraph 2?

- A. Various approaches to child-rearing choices add complexity, leaving parents unsure about positive parenting styles.
- B. With clear expert guidelines, parenting labels simplify decisions, making parents certain about the best child-rearing approach.
- C. Parenting is now more complex due to conflicting advice, unclear expert guidance, and diverse parenting styles.
- D. Constant conflicts about good parenting make child-rearing decisions increasingly complicated for parents.

Question 34. Which of the following can be inferred from the passage?

- A. Parenting in the past was characterized by a greater emotional gap between parents and their children.
- B. Parental guilt has gradually decreased as modern parents dedicate more time and resources to their children.
- C. Parenting is often an unplanned decision, with many individuals becoming parents without considering the responsibilities involved.
- D. The media's influence has heightened parental fears, resulting in greater control and less independence for children.

Question 35. Which of the following best summarizes the passage?

- A. Parenting today focuses less on maintaining strict control, as modern parents increasingly respond to growing societal pressures and expectations to prioritize their children's overall happiness.
- B. The choice to become a parent is more deliberate today, but abundant advice has eased parenting challenges, despite persistent concerns about children's overall well-being.
- C. Modern parenting is highly complex, requiring parents to manage conflicting advice, increased safety concerns, and evolving societal expectations that influence the dynamics of the parent-child relationship.
- D. Despite the rise of media-driven anxieties, modern parents are more focused on ensuring their children's emotional stability than advertising concerns about physical safety or social expectations.

Read the following passage about social media and mark the letter A, B, C or D on your answer sheet to indicate the option that best fits each of the numbered blanks from 36 to 40.

As the world seeks sustainable solutions to energy needs, renewable energy sources such as wind, solar, and hydroelectric power are gaining popularity. Solar panels and wind turbines, which have been installed to reduce dependency on fossil fuels, are now common sights in many countries. (36) _____.

One of the key advantages of renewable energy is its minimal environmental impact. Unlike fossil fuels, (37) _____, renewable sources produce little to no emissions. This makes them a vital part of global efforts to reduce pollution, protect ecosystems, and promote a cleaner planet.

Another benefit of renewable energy is its potential to provide energy security. (38) _____. Since renewable sources are naturally replenished, they offer a stable and endless supply of power, unlike non-renewable resources that may eventually run out.

(39) _____. This has led to a rise in green jobs across various industries. These jobs include positions in manufacturing, installation, and maintenance, which contribute to local economies and provide opportunities for a skilled workforce.

Governments globally are supporting the transition to renewable energy. Policies and incentives (40) _____. These measures reflect a commitment to sustainable development.
