- 1 Michael Faraday, (1791 - 1867) was an England scientist who contributed to the fields of electromagnetism and electrochemistry. Although Faraday received little formal education, he was one of the most influential scientist in history, and historians of science refer to him as having been the best experimentalist in the history of
- 5 science. The young Michael Faraday, who was the third of fourth children, having only the most basic school education, had to educate himself. At fourteen, he became the apprentice to George Riebau, a local bookbinder and bookseller. During his seven-years apprenticeship he read many books, including Isaac Watts' The Improvement of the Mind, and he enthusiastical implemented the principles and
- 10 suggestions contained therein.
- In 1812, in the age of twenty, and at the end of his apprenticeship, Faraday attended lectures by the eminent English chemistry Humphry Davy. Faraday subsequently sent Davy a three-hundred-page book based on notes that he had taken during these lectures. Davy's reply was immediate, kind, and favourable. When one of the Royal
- 15 Institution's assistants was sacking, Davy was asked to find a replace, and appointed Faraday as Chemical Assistant at the Royal Institution.

According to airline industry statistics, almost 90 percent of airline accidents are survivable or partially survivable. But passengers can increase their chances of survival by learning and following certain tips. Experts say that you should read and listen to safety instructions before takeoff and ask questions if you have uncertainties. You should fasten your seat belt low on your hips and as tightly as possible. Of course, you should also know how the release mechanism of your belt operates. During takeoffs and landings, you are advised to keep your feet flat on the floor. Before takeoff, you should locate the nearest exit and an alternative exit and count the rows of seats between you and the exits so that you can find them in the dark if necessary. In the event that you are forewarned of a possible accident, you should put your hands on your ankles and keep your head down until the planes comes to a complete stop. If smoke is present in the cabin, you should keep your head low and cover your face with napkins, towels, or clothing. If possible, wet these for added protection against smoke inhalation. To evacuate as quickly as possible, follow crew commands and do not take personal belongings with you. Do not jump on escape slides before they are fully inflated, and when you jump, do so with your arms and legs extended in front of you. When you get to the ground, you should move away from the plane as quickly as possible, and never smoke near the wreckage.

1. What is the main topic of the passage?
 - A. Procedures for evacuation aircraft.
 - B. Guidelines for increasing aircraft passenger survival.
 - C. Airline industry accident statistics.
