Australians place a high value on independence and personal choice. This means that a teacher or course tutor will not tell students what to do, but will give them a number of options and suggest they work out which one is the best in their circumstances. It also means that they are expected to take action if something goes wrong and seek out resources and support for themselves.

Australians are also prepared to accept a range of opinions rather than believing there is one truth. This means that in an educational setting, students will be expected to form their own opinions and defend the reasons for that point of view and the evidence for it.

Australians are uncomfortable with differences in status and hence idealise the idea of treating everyone equally. An illustration of this is that most adult Australians call each other by their first names. This concern with equality means that Australians are uncomfortable taking anything too seriously and are even ready to joke about themselves.

Australians believe that life should have a balance between work and leisure time. As a consequence, some students may be critical of others who they perceive as doing nothing but study. Australian notions of privacy mean that areas such as financial matters, appearance and relationships are only discussed with close friends. While people may volunteer such information, they may resent someone actually asking them unless the friendship is firmly established. Even then, it is considered very impolite to ask someone what they earn.

Question 39: Which best serves as the title for the passage?

- A. Australian culture
- B. Australian education
- C. Balancing Work and Leisure in Australia
- D. Things to do in Australia

Question 42: The word critical in paragraph 4 is closest in meaning to _____.

- A. complimentary
- B. faultfinding
- C. appreciative
- D. ashamed

Question 43: Which of the following is NOT true, according to the passage?

- A. Asking someone what they earn is considered fairly polite.
- B. Australians are prepared to accept a range of opinions.
- C. A teacher or course tutor will not tell students what to do.
- D. Students in Australia will be expected to form their own opinions.

Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C, or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the questions from 44 to 50.

Scientists have identified two ways in which species disappear. The first is through ordinary or “background” extinctions, where species that fail to adapt are slowly replaced by more adaptable life forms. The second is when large numbers of species go to the wall in relatively short periods of biological time. There have been five such extinctions, each provoked by cataclysmic evolutionary events caused by some geological eruption, climate shift, or space junk slamming into the Earth. Scientists now believe that another mass extinction of species is currently under way – and this time human fingerprints are on the trigger.

How are we doing it? Simply by demanding more and more space for ourselves. In our assault on the ecosystems around us we have used a number of tools, from spear and gun to bulldozer and chainsaw. Certain especially rich ecosystems have proved the most vulnerable. In Hawaii more than half of the native birds are now gone – some 50 species. Such carnage has taken place all across the island communities of the Pacific and Indian oceans. While many species were hunted to extinction, others simply succumbed to die to the “introduced predators” that humans brought with them: the cat, the dog, the pig, and the rat.

Today the tempo of extinction is picking up speed. Hunting is no longer the major culprit, although rare birds and animals continue to be butchered for their skin, feathers, tusks, and internal organs, or taken as savage pets. Today the main threat comes from the destruction of the habitat of wild plants, animals, and insects need to survive. The draining and damming of wetland and river courses threaten the aquatic food chain and our own seafood industry. Overfishing and the destruction of fragile coral reefs destroy ocean biodiversity. Deforestation is taking a staggering toll, particularly in the tropics where the most global biodiversity is at risk. The shrinking rainforest cover of the Congo and Amazon river basins and such places as Borneo and Madagascar have a wealth of species per hectare existing nowhere else. As those precious hectares are drowned or turned into arid pasture and cropland, such species disappear forever.

Question 44: What does the passage mainly discuss?

- A. The tempo of extinction of species today
- B. Deforestation as a major cause of mass extinctions of species
- C. Human activity and its impact on a mass extinction of species
- D. The two ways in which species disappear

- C. destroying coral reefs
- D. damming wetlands and rivers

Question 47: The word others in paragraph 2 refers to _____.

- A. Indian oceans
- B. species
- C. native birds
- D. communities

Question 48: Which is no longer considered a major cause of the mass extinction under way currently?

- A. the destruction of habitats of species
- B. the killing of animals for their body parts
- C. the shrinking of rainforests in the tropics
- D. the building of dams across rivers

Question 49: The word shrinking in paragraph 3 is closest in meaning to _____.

- A. becoming smaller
- B. relating to biodiversity
- C. being exploited
- D. becoming richer

Question 50: It can be inferred from the passage that _____.

- A. it's impossible for scientists to identify the causes of mass extinctions of species
- B. the current mass extinction is different from the other five in that it is caused by humans
- C. hunting is the major contributing factor that speeds up the extinction of species
- D. habitat destruction makes a minor contribution to the current mass extinction of species
