IX. Read the text and answer the questions.

When I reflect on my journey of learning English, I realize how much it has evolved over time. As a child, I used to struggle with grasping the basics of grammar and vocabulary. Back then, my English study routine consisted of sitting at my desk with a stack of textbooks and a trusty dictionary. I used to spend countless hours flipping through pages, trying to decipher the meanings of words and understand complex grammatical structures,

One technique that I used to rely on heavily was making flashcards, I would create stacks of flashcards with English words on one side and their translations or definitions on the other. I used to carry these cards everywhere, pulling them out during spare moments to review and reinforce my vocabulary.

Another method that I used to employ was listening to English radio broadcasts and watching English-language TV shows and movies. I found that immersing myself in the language helped me pick up on nuances of pronunciation and colloquial expressions.

As I progressed in my English studies, I used to participate in language exchange programs where I would connect with native speakers to practice conversational English. These interactions were invaluable in helping me gain confidence in speaking and understanding spoken English.

In recent years, technology has transformed the way I study English. I now have access to a plethora of language learning apps and online courses that offer interactive lessons and real-time feedback. While these modern tools have revolutionized my learning experience, I still find myself drawn to the traditional methods that I used to rely on. There's something comforting about flipping through the pages of a well-worn textbook or jotting down vocabulary words on flashcards.

Overall, my English study methods have evolved over time, but the dedication and perseverance that I used to demonstrate in my studies remain constant.

IX. Read the text and answer the questions.

Quan dreams of a house that seems straight out of a science fiction movie, where everything is super cool and easy to use. In his kitchen, he envisions a fridge that knows when it's low on food and orders more groceries by itself. And his stove, which listens to him and cooks food just the way he likes it, without any mistakes, is an essential appliance.

Now, let's talk about the living room. Quan's dream house has this huge TV that looks like a picture frame when it's not playing anything, but when it's on, it's like being in a movie theater! He can watch all his favorite shows and movies in super clear quality, right at home.

But that's not all. Everywhere in the house, the lights and temperature change automatically to what Quan likes, thanks to smart sensors that detect his preferences. If he wants it cozy, the lights dim and the room warms up. If he wants it bright and cool, it happens quickly.

1. What does Quan dream of in his house?

Simple Health Tips for a Happier Life

Taking care of your health is really important for your overall well-being. Here are some simple tips to help you stay healthy.

First, make sure to get regular exercise. Doing activities like walking, jogging, or biking for at least 30 minutes most days of the week can keep you fit and make you feel good. Eating healthy is also key. Choose foods like fruits, vegetables, whole grains, lean proteins (like chicken or fish), and good fats (like nuts and avocados). Try to avoid processed foods, sugary snacks, and fatty meals. And don't forget to drink plenty of water!

Getting enough sleep is important too. Aim for about 7 to 8 hours of sleep each night. Having a consistent sleep schedule and a relaxing bedtime routine can help you sleep better. Managing stress is crucial. Find healthy ways to deal with stress, like deep breathing, doing things you enjoy, or practicing relaxation techniques.

Don't forget to see your doctor for regular checkups. They can help you stay healthy and catch any problems early. And take care of your mental health too by seeking support if you need it and doing things that make you happy..

Avoiding bad habits is also important. Try to stay away from smoking, drinking too much alcohol, and using drugs. These things can really harm your health.

Remember, even small changes in your daily routine can make a big difference in your health. By following these simple tips, you can take control of your well-being and live a healthier life.
