-----TAPESCRIPT-----

Listen 1:

In the USA, they're called apartments; in the UK they're called flats. They are a modern invention. I don't particularly like them. I don't think it's good for so many people to live so close together. It's not good for people to live on top of each other. I don't understand how people can live above the second floor. It's not natural to live in the sky. The thing I hate most about apartments are the lifts (Americans say elevator) and the fact there's no garden. More and more people are moving into apartments. This creates problems with overcrowding. There aren't enough spaces to park your car, there's nowhere to throw your rubbish and you have to wait ages to reach your floor. Give me a little house with a little garden any day.

Listen 2:

All houses are unique. Even if they look the same from the outside, they are very different on the inside. I think houses are very interesting. I like looking at the way they are built and the style they are built in. In London there are many houses that are hundreds of years old. These are beautiful. You can still see much of the original wood and stone structure. Modern houses are also interesting. It's funny how they copy many of the features of older houses. I love looking at houses when I travel. Every country has its own special designs, from Japan to Arabia to Greece. Nowadays people are building eco-friendly houses. They want houses that save energy and help protect the planet.
